College of the Canyons Commercial Driver's License (CDL) Training Program

DRIVERS TRAINED IN:

NAVIGATING CALIFORNIA'S JOB MARKET

CDL drivers are one of the most in-demand jobs in the nation, and employers across the country are facing severe personnel shortages. Within the state of California, there are well over 150,000 full-time, entry-level jobs for CDL-A drivers. College of the Canyons can help you stay ahead of the curve by training your teams in-house and/or providing a pipeline of recent grads to your company.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Students in COC's CDL program are trained with curriculum that adheres to the FMCSA's requirements for standardized Entry-Level Driver Training (ELDT). Topics covered include:

- vehicle inspections
- cargo handling
- size/weight laws
- range maneuvers
- general maintenance procedures
- motor carrier safety regulations
- hours of service
- trip planning
- accident prevention

HOW IT WORKS

If your teams need direct training, we can provide in-person instruction on your equipment or ours; at your location or on campus. If you're looking to recruit from COC, you'll provide us with a brief corporate summary and list of open positions. This information is given to students during their program. In-person interviews may be available depending on COC's resources and scheduling.
